Red Purges In Germany, Russia Bared

Berlin (AP) — Communist East Germany purged its justice minister, Max Fechner, yesterday and appointed a woman judge, "Red Hilde" Benjamin, to take his place. Premier Otto Grotewohl said Fechner, 60, was fired for "activity hostile to the republic," but did not specify what this activity was. He apparently has been chosen as a scapegoat for the anti-government riots which began June 17.

Fechner's fall was made public just six days after Moscow announced that Soviet Secret Police Chief Lavrenty P. Beria had been stripped of high office and set down as a traitor. The same fate apparently awaits Fechner. The East German Red minister was the first satellite politician to get the ax in what is expected to be a widespread purge in the wake of Beria's arrest. Fechner's son was reported arrested earlier yesterday on undisclosed charges.

The East German announcement coincided with a Moscow radio declaration that Beria's crony, Vladimir G. Dekanozov, had been purged from the Communist party in Georgia, a Soviet Republic. This apparently meant that Dekanozov had also lost his job as minister for state security in Georgia, home province of Stalin and Beria.

Fechner was last in the news July 5 when he disclosed that 50,000 Germans had been arrested for taking part in the uprisings.

He had been noted since appointment to his job in 1949 as a vigorous anti-American and leader of the campaign to blame the regime's troubles on "American saboteurs."

But his successor, "Red Hilde," has been even more zealous.

Mrs. Benjamin went on the warpath last year and the scalps began piling up. Day after day, broken men were hauled before the bench where she sat as judge of the State Supreme Court.

They were told what their alleged crime was, given virtually no chance of defense and sent off to long prison terms.

Her swarthy face, flashing black eyes and vitriolic tongue were a dynamic part of the Soviet zone scene. Next to party boss Walter Ulbricht she has been the most feared person in East Germany.

Mrs. Benjamin, who is Jewish, has been a Communist since the end of World War I. She managed to escape Hitlerian prosecution through means which have never been made public, although her husband died in a concentration camp. She won her nickname because of devotion to the Kremlin throughout those long years.

His Rent Reduced

Dartford, Eng. (AP) — A. L. Pockis won a rent reduction yesterday after telling a tribunal his landlord, living in the same house, cut off the electricity and read by the light of a streetlamp.

JOAN KAIBLE of Queens, N. Y., has been chosen to represent New York City at the annual Miss America beauty pageant in Atlantic City, N. J. (International)

Senate Sends Profits Tax Measure To Eisenhower

Washington (AP) — Heeding pleas that amendments might cause further delays, the Senate voted a straight six-month extension of the excess profits tax yesterday and sent the long-disputed tax measure to President Eisenhower. Action came by voice vote after a 52-34 vote defeated the only amendment formally offered. That proposal would have exempted firms with net income of $100,000 or less. The present exemption limit is $25,000.

Senate leaders emphasized that any amendment in the House-approved measure, however worthy, would force the bill into a House-Senate Conference Committee and require another vote of approval in the House.

Only strong administration pressure and a threat to by-pass House Ways and Means Committee brought the measure out to the House floor for passage there last week.

Senate approval gave the Eisenhower administration a solid victory in its efforts to avoid a cut in revenue which it has said is needed to help toward a balanced budget.

With the extension voted yesterday, the excess profits tax will die Dec. 31, at the same time a 10 per cent cut in personal income taxes is to become effective. Administration spokesmen promised both cuts will be allowed to take effect then.

The six-month extension of the excess profits tax, made retroactive to its expiration last June 30, will add an estimated 800 million dollars to revenues in the new fiscal year.

House Cuts Voice Budget To 60 Million

Washington, (AP) — House Republicans with a little Democratic help cut 32 per cent yesterday from President Eisenhower's "austerity budget" request for the Voice of America.

The Voice is a major activity of the State Department's international information and educational program to counter Soviet propaganda abroad.

Its financing was provided in a $168,155,584 omnibus appropriation bill which the House passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate.

Eisenhower has requested $87,900,000 to operate the program during the fiscal year ending next June 30. Former President Truman wanted $114,515,800.

The committee, however, cut it to 60 millions and the House sustained that action.

60-Mile Speed Limit Measure Sent To Fine

Harrisburg, (AP) — The Senate yesterday passed a bill to increase the maximum speed limit from 50 to 60 miles an hour on highways posted by the state highways secretary.

The measure, approved by a 51 to 10 margin, went to Gov. John S. Fine.

The new speed limit would apply only in areas outside business and residential districts and on roads where traffic and other conditions warrant the higher speed. Its application would be left entirely to the discretion of the highways department head.

Meantime, a bill granting the state secretary of revenue power to order governors attached to motor vehicles won approval of the Senate Highways Committee.

The revenue secretary would be authorized to fix the maximum speed limit allowed by the mechanical device. All governors ordered installed would be sealed by the state police and breaking of the seal or failure to install one would result in a $100 to $500 fine and or a sentence of three years in prison.

The device would make certain that cited drivers could not travel in excess of the fixed maximum.

U.S. Consulate In Gibraltar Closed

Washington (AP) — The United States yesterday closed down the American consulate at Gibraltar, a diplomatic outpost which has served overseas for 150 years.

The State Department, in announcing the move, said it was "because of the need for greater economy in the overseas operations of this government."

All duties handled by the consulate will be taken over by the American Embassy in London.

Senate Group Kills Bill To Control Natural Gas Storage

Harrisburg, (AP) — A House-approved bill to regulate the underground storage of natural gas near coal mines was killed yesterday by the Senate State Government Committee.

After a closed committee meeting, Chairman G. Graybill Diehn (R-Lancaster) told a newsmen that committee members voted unanimously to postpone indefinitely action on the measure.

"It's killed," he said.

The only way the bill could now be brought back for action would be for the Senate membership to remove it from committee. However, the Senate and House have always upheld committee actions through the years.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Robert F. Kent (R-Crawford), would prohibit the underground storage of natural gas within 2,000 feet of a coal mine.

Gas companies opposed the bill, claiming it would require vast new installations for gas storage. Coal interests favored it, contending that it would make mining safer.

Meanwhile, a House-passed bill to allow the State Department of Forests and Waters to lease state forest land for underground natural gas storage was approved by a Senate committee.

The bill would allow such leases, upon such terms and conditions as the secretary of forests and waters deems to be in the best interest of the commonwealth.

New Sales Tax Changes Voted

Harrisburg, (AP) — The Senate State Government Committee yesterday approved a proposal to include water bills and religious articles among the list of exemptions from the new 1 per cent sales tax law.

There was a question as to how far the bill introduced only Tuesday will travel through the legislature since it is without administrative backing.

It would be the first change in the sales tax law signed Monday by Gov. John S. Fine to raise 125 millions in new revenue in the current biennium.

Democrats renewed their contention that the yield will run far short of the 125 million dollar figure estimated by Republican legislative leaders.

Prison Releases McCall On Parole

Lewisburg, (AP) — Patrick McCall, Lancaster, Pa., publisher and contractor sentenced to a year and a day sentence for income tax evasion, was released on parole from federal prison yesterday.

Last month the parole board in Washington granted McCall a parole at the completion of his minimum sentence of 5½ months. He began the term on Feb. 2.

McCall pleaded no contest to charges of evading payment of $84,000 in 1944 and 1945 taxes.

New Truck Weight Bill Introduced

Harrisburg, (AP) — New legislation, approved by the State Highway Department, was introduced in the Senate yesterday to increase weight limits on double rear axle trucks in Pennsylvania from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds.

The move shifted the truck weight battle to the Senate from the House, which defeated a bill last week boosting maximum weight limits to 58,500 pounds.

The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, which backed the defeated House bill, said industrial shippers requested the trucking industry to support the new Senate bill, and that it would "reluctantly" accept it.

A major provision in the Senate bill calls for reduction of the maximum axle load on tandem, or double, axles from 36,000 to 32,000 pounds.

Sen. Frank Koprivier (R-Allegheny), said that provision should reduce the danger of road damage by trucks despite the proposed total weight in the maximum weight limit.

"With proper distribution of weight there is no harm done to our highways," Koprivier said.

Trucking interests have long maintained that axle weight and not gross weight is the important factor in highway wear. And they have been plumping for wider use of tandem axle vehicles. The Senate truck bill also calls for increased fines for overloading and higher license fees.

A $100 fine would be levied on violators overloading their vehicles by 5 per cent, with a 10-day jail sentence for default of payment. If above 10 per cent the overloader would pay a $500 fine or serve 30 days in jail for default.

A five per cent tolerance would be permitted on all gross weight and axle weight limitations. In addition to the boost for tandem axle trucks, single axle truck weight limits would go from 45,000 to 48,000 pounds.

Drunk Bypasses Judge, Escapes Longer Sentence

Detroit, (AP) — When Edward Wood, 56, appeared in court Monday on a drunkenness charge, the judge warned that a 60-day jail term would be handed out on his next offense.

Wood was back in court yesterday on the same charge and before the same judge.

The defendant asked for a jury trial and was found guilty, with a 30-day jail sentence recommended by the jurors.

Wood left for jail with a happy smile.

"I'd have got 60 days from the judge, so I am 30 days to the good," he said.

Amish Bill Beaten

Harrisburg, (AP) — The House yesterday for a second time, defeated a bill designed to permit Amish children to leave school at age 14 to work on farms and in the homes of their parents. The vote was 82-92 with 105 needed for passage.

Negotiators Meet Only Brief Time

Panmunjom, Thursday (AP) — U. N. Command and Communist truce negotiators met less than a half hour today and recessed until Saturday, July 18, at 2 p.m. (1 a.m., EDT).

There was a 15-minute delay in the start of today's meeting, scheduled for 11 a.m., and which had been called a "possible showdown" session. It ended at 11:39 a.m.

There was no word immediately on the reason for the delay in starting, or for the one-day recess and the unusual starting time of the next session.

Meetings have been held daily since the current string of talks began, and have always begun at 11 a.m.

The U. N. Command delegates went into today's talks for a possible showdown with the Reds, who reportedly have been told that the armistice agreement must be signed now, or the talks called off.

The U. N. delegation apparently was responsible for the 15-minute delay in the start of today's talks, to give it time to receive a message delivered by helicopter.

Correspondents noted that a helicopter flew to the Panmunjom neutral zone about 11:10 a.m., and that the pilot delivered a yellow teletype message to the Allied delegation waiting in its tent adjacent the conference hut.

The U. N. delegates huddled around a table, reading the message for about five minutes and then walked into the conference hut. The Communist delegation waited outside the hut until after the U. N. delegation walked in.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, top Red negotiator, paced impatiently outside the Red delegation's tent, gazing frequently at his wrist watch, during the delay.

A well-informed source said Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U. N. truce delegate, laid it on the line at yesterday's 21-minute meeting.

The source said today's session "might make or break the talks."

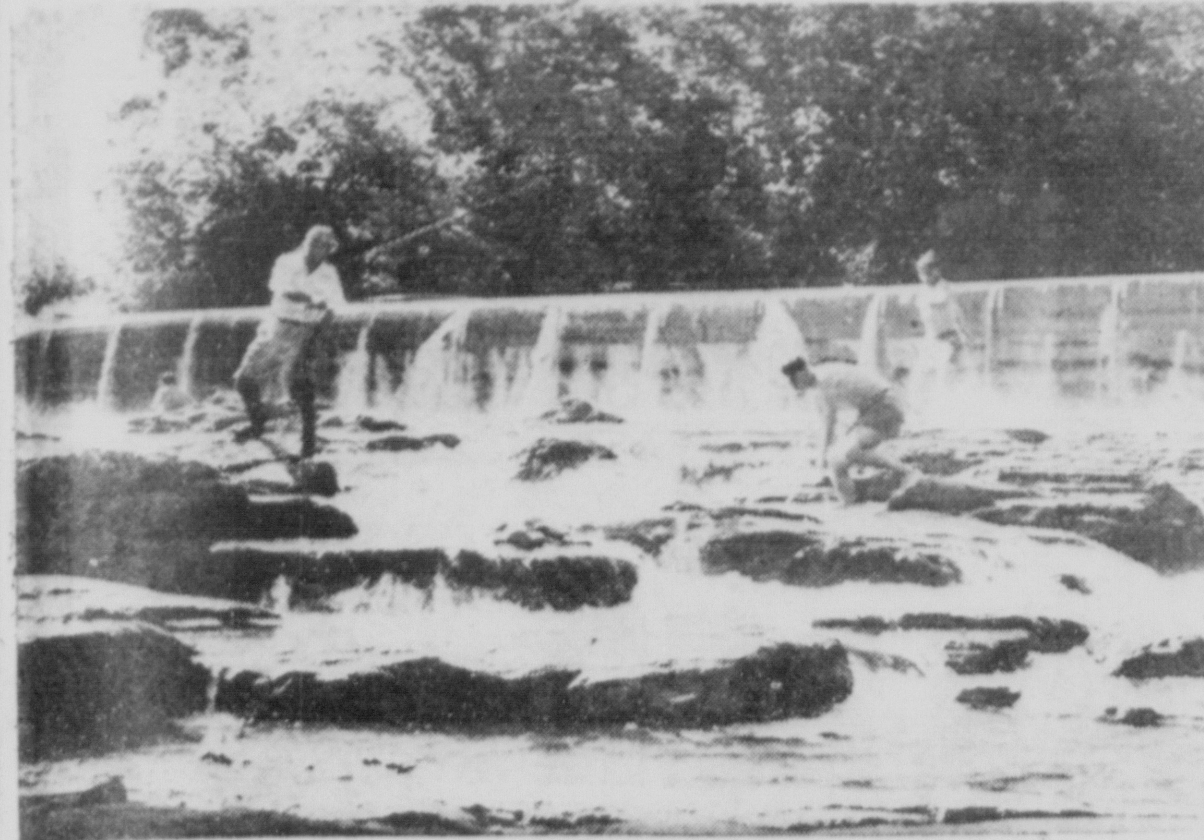

Peking's Red radio said that Harrison abruptly ended Wednesday's talks without asking if the Reds concurred and "walked out of the meeting." North Korea's Pyongyang radio said Harrison "abruptly broke up the truce talks Tuesday and Wednesday."

Actress Suffers Paralysis Attack

Hollywood, (AP) — Former child actress Jane Withers is recovering from a muscular ailment that paralyzed her arms and legs, her mother reported yesterday.

The mother, Mrs. Louis Boonshaft, said the actress was stricken after the strain of moving into a new house and taking part in Anna Blythe's wedding. She said there was no sign of pain.

Mrs. Withers is still estranged from her husband, Texas oilman William Moss. "But he talks to her several times a week from Midland, Tex.," her mother said, "and I think everything is going to work out."

SUN AND FROTHY WHITE WATER below the falls at Stokes Mill brought dozens of bathers to the creek there yesterday, but there were a few fishermen to try their luck too. Typical of them is the angler above, letting his line run downstream with the rapids—and hoping for a treat. (Daily Record Photo)

Tanks, Artillery, Planes Support S. Korean Thrust

Seoul, Thursday (AP) — Three South Korean divisions rolled forward in a counterattack on the East-Central Front today and, at first reports, had gained one mile in a push to retake ground lost to Reds early this week.

Squadrons of 5th Air Force planes roared out, too, for the first time in three days, blasting enemy positions along the sector.

The South Korean counterattackers numbered about 45,000 men.

Tanks roared along the highways beside the columns of ROK troops heading north. Allied heavy artillery pounded roads ahead of the troops.

South Korean Gen. Sun Yip Pail reported the infantrymen were "making good progress."

"I feel now that the battle has settled down to the point where we can go ahead and attack and drive the Chinese back," he added.

The ROKs were hitting north-west of the Pukhan River where the Chinese made their greatest gains Monday night and Tuesday morning in the onset of the Reds' greatest offensive in two years.

The Red gains came along a 20-mile wide front between Kumhwa and the Pukhan River on the Kumsong Bulge of the East-Central Front. The Red smash had knocked the South Korean back several miles, just how many was withheld by censorship.

Gen. Mark Clark, U. N. commander, arrived in Seoul as the ROK counterattack got under way.

Squadrons of thundering Allied jet fighters-bombers flew against the Reds, trying feverishly to dig in on their newly won positions on the Kumsong Bulge.

The fighter-bombers opened their attack at dawn by knocking out the main bridge on the Kumsong River just west of its junction with the Pukhan.

The bridge had been mined but ROK troops failed to blow it up in their hurried withdrawal Tuesday.

The scream of the jets was a welcome sound to South Korean infantrymen who battled the attacking Reds three days without air support in rainy weather.

From high above the early morning cloud cover, 15 U. S. B29 Superforts from Okinawa unleashed 150 tons of bombs on Red troop concentration areas along the East Central Front. Returning crewmen said they were unable to observe results.

Allied officers said the Red drive, biggest Chinese push in two years, apparently was intended only to be a limited offensive, designed to flatten the Allies' Kumsong Bulge in the middle of the 155-mile front line.

The Allied officers expressed confidence they could hold off any new Red assaults in the sector, particularly with Allied air power back in action.

The South Koreans fell back under the initial heavy Red pounding Monday and Tuesday and reformed on a new defense line.

The extent of the withdrawal has been clouded by censorship but in the early stages Red infiltration units were reported as far as four miles inside Allied territory.

The South Koreans' new front stabilized on Tuesday and had hardly changed.

Clark Charges Reds Violated Secrecy Pact

Seoul, Thursday (AP) — U. N. Commander Gen. Mark Clark arrived in Korea today from his Tokyo headquarters as truce talks neared a crisis at Panmunjom and immediately accused the Communists of violating secrecy of the armistice negotiations.

Clark told newsmen who met him at an airport that the Communist radio report yesterday of an American "walkout" from the talks had "violated the executive nature of the truce sessions."

The general would not go beyond this statement.

But he said he will meet with Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., chief U. N. Delegate at Munson.

Clark said he plans to stay two days in Korea and will also visit with Gen. Maxwell Taylor, Eighth Army commander, at the front and with South Korean President Syngman Rhee in Seoul.

Clark said he had also come to Korea to check on the military situation along the East-Central Front where the Chinese launched their biggest attack in two years Monday night.

This will be in addition to keeping an eye on the truce negotiations, he said.

"The front situation appears to be in hand from reports I have received," Clark said, but added he would go to the front to see for himself.

Clark refused to comment when asked if the "walkout" of the Red talks had definitely been broken.

Truce Held 'Up To Reds'

Washington, (AP) — Walter S. Robertson returned from his Korean mission yesterday to report that President Syngman Rhee has fallen in line with the United Nations forces and the question of a truce is now squarely up to the Reds.

Robertson, an assistant secretary of state who went to Rhee at President Eisenhower's personal envoy, called at the White House within an hour and a half after his plane touched down at the National Airport.

After a 10-minute conference with the President, Robertson told reporters Rhee has not changed his objections to an armistice in Korea at this time "but has agreed to collaborate with us" in an effort to achieve unification of the country by peaceful means.

"We can go ahead and sign an armistice in good faith at any time," he said, indicating that his two weeks of negotiations with the South Korean leader have created a situation in which the fighting could stop if the Communists sincerely want a truce.

Bodies Of Three Hunters Found

Gaspé, Que., (AP) — The bodies of three United States hunters, missing more than a month in woods west of here, were found late yesterday.

The three hunters were identified as Eugene H. Lindsey, 47, his son, Richard, 17, and Fred Claar, 20, all of Holidaysburg, Pa.

The bodies were reported found about three miles from their abandoned truck. Searchers found the truck about 65 miles west of here last Friday.

Allen Scores Two More News Beats

Two key representatives of the U.S. in Europe returned to the U.S. to report this week, and Robert S. Allen, columnist for The Daily Record, had both stories first, both of them in special releases.

Ambassador Charles Bohlen's return to brief the Big Three Foreign Ministers' conference on the power struggle among the Russian leaders was announced July 10 but Allen had it exclusively on June 5 so early that it then appeared Bohlen would be making his report for the Big Three Bermuda conference, instead of the Big Three's foreign ministers.

Similarly, Allen reported in a "special" July 11 that Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme Allied commander in Europe, would be brought back to report to Congress on the mutual security program, and no one else had the story until July 12 as the general was about to land in New York.

Among other Allen beats confirmed in the last few days was the toughening of the rules on drafting of fathers, reported by AP July 11, but by Allen six months earlier on Jan. 16.

And the House Appropriations Committee's slating of the Foreign Information Administration "entertainment" budget proposed by Dr. Robert Johnson, Allen reported to his readers on June 26 that the axe was being sharpened for this fund.

Sex Slayer Christie Dies On Gallows

London, (AP)—A hangman's noose yesterday snuffed out the life of John R. Christie, the sex strangler of Notting Hill.

The skinny little trucking clerk who confessed he killed seven or more women dropped through the gallows trap at Pentonville prison while fellow convicts waited in a traditional outcry and a crowd of 200 cracked morbid jokes outside the gates.

A defense psychiatrist testified at the trial last month that Christie, 36, was fascinated by dead bodies. Christie's lawyer termed him "mad as a March hare" in his sexual orgies. Christie himself said his killings had "no reason, no sense." He pleaded insanity.

He was executed for the murder of his wife, Ethel, 54, whose body was found stuffed under the floorboards of his sleazy flat at 10 Rillington Place last March. The bodies of three younger women were found walled up in the pantry and the back yard yielded two female skeletons.

Christie walked the 12 yards from the death cell to the same gallows in a corrugated iron execution shed where Timothy Evans, a slow-witted 26-year-old neighbor, was hanged three years ago for strangling Evans' infant daughter Geraldine. Evans' wife, Beryl, 20, was killed with the child, but he was not sentenced on that count.

Christie was the chief prosecution witness at Evans' trial. But at his own hearing in Old Bailey, Christie said Mrs. Evans was among his victims. Some Laborite members of Parliament expressed the suspicion that Evans' hanging was a miscarriage of justice. This was denied in a report by a government inquiry group after holding closed hearings.

Now Christie is being buried in the prison cemetery beside the grave of the man he helped convict.

Owners of wax museums throughout Britain rushed work on effigies of Christie for display in their "Chambers of Horror." He has become the most notorious killer in Britain since the days of Jack the Ripper.

Captain Townsend, Reported Lover Of Princess Margaret, In Belgium For New Duties

Brussels, Belgium, (AP)—Capt. Peter Townsend, the man Princess Margaret of Britain is reported to love, bounced into Brussels in a luggage-laden little English Ford yesterday to take up his duties as air attache at the British Embassy.

He arrived from London just two days before Margaret was scheduled to return there from an African tour.

The transfer of Townsend, a 38-year-old pilot-hero of the Battle of Britain who has divorced his wife, from Queen Elizabeth's court was widely regarded as a government move to separate him from the pretty 22-year-old princess. British papers said it had "the ring of a Victorian melodrama."

Townsend has been an equerry at the British court since 1944 when Margaret was a blue-eyed, blonde adolescent of 14. As she grew up he was assigned to escort her to balls, hunts and other social events.

During this close companionship, Townsend lived with his wife and two children in a "grace and favor" cottage at Windsor Castle. "Grace and favor" properties are those belonging to the royal family which are given rent-free as residences to persons in royal favor.

He divorced his wife last autumn on the grounds of misconduct, but remained at court—which is unusual for a divorced man.

Shortly after the coronation, June 2, the world press burgeoned with reports that Margaret and he were in love and wanted to marry. These reports have never been denied either by the palace or by the British Cabinet which is constitutionally interested in royal romances.

The British press has reported that the Church of England considers Townsend ineligible as a suitor to Margaret who is third in line for the throne.

Foreign Courts May Try U. S. Servicemen

Washington, (AP)—The Senate yesterday ratified a treaty giving foreign courts the right to try and punish American servicemen for civil offenses overseas.

U. S. courts likewise will have jurisdiction over similar offenses committed by troops of other North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) countries stationed here.

U. S. troops have been subject to trial in foreign courts for several years under terms of an executive agreement approved by former President Truman, but the treaty provision drew sharp fire from Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) and others who contended the United States should maintain full jurisdiction over its servicemen regardless of where they are stationed.

The overseas trial provision was the only one which caused a fight as the Senate ratified three separate treaties dealing with rights and obligations of official personnel of one NATO country stationed within another. There are 14 nations, including the United States.

The provision was contained in one of the treaties which dealt with uniformed personnel. Despite the battle over its terms, the Senate ratified it by a 72-15 roll call vote—14 more than the required two-thirds.

The other two treaties then were ratified by voice vote.

Help Rebuild Company G

Company G, 109th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard, has embarked once more on a reactivation program one of several in its very brilliant period of service to its community and nation.

After each of the several major conflicts in which this unit of the 28th Division served, G Company reorganized for peace-time training and was READY when the call came to active duty. It was this preparedness of our citizen-soldiers of peace-time that saved this nation time and again.

It was the trained citizen-soldier of the National Guard who was rushed to critical points because they were READY.

The local National Guard unit was organized Nov. 14, 1913. Local drills and three summer encampments for field training found it ready when the call came in 1916 to go to the Mexican Border to handle difficulties there.

Enroute home from that duty, the Company learned this nation had entered in World War I. Once home the citizen soldiers were assigned to guarding strategic bridges in this area of the state until Aug. 14, 1917 when they were sent to Camp Hancock for intensive training. Returning in 1918 they were home about three days before moving to France.

World War I found Company G and other units of the 28th reaping glory, simply because these citizen soldiers were READY.

Reactivated after World War I, their next call came for World War II. Again they were READY. Their battle record won them the "Bloody Bucket" division nickname from their tough Nazi foes—a name symbolizing their battle prowess and the red Keystone State shield they wore.

Their return from World War II was again followed by reorganization and once again they were called to stand off Russian threats in Germany as occupation troops. They did their job well again because they were READY.

This new activation program has already brought in many young men and former officers and members of Company G. It deserves the wholehearted support of every citizen and every agency in the community.

The past has proven that in such men as these—citizens who train in time of peace—lies the strength of the nation in peace and war.

It is our duty to lend every assistance to see that Company G again flourishes in peace time.

Democratic Organ

This is by way of welcoming to the publishing field The Democratic Digest, a pocket-sized, monthly magazine put out under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee.

It is neat in appearance and pretends to be nothing but what it is—a spokesman for the Democratic Party on a national scale.

The Digest has many good things to say about the Democratic rule of 20 years in Washington and some things not so good to say about the administration now in power.

Of course, the Democrats have every right to put their views before the public in this form and it will be a good thing, we believe.

Furthermore, this venture will rob campaign orators, loaded with more words than facts, of the charge that this country is saddled with a one-party press.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

The Purged Get The News

The ghosts of the purged smile grimly. . . . "It couldn't have happened to a nicer man!" is the message that goes down the line of the butchered men. "This was worth waiting for," cackles the specter of one who once stood high in "Soviet councils." "There will be others soon!" smiles a Russian who had known a day of eminence in the Kremlin. "Pull up a chair! We are having a guest," grins the ghost of a solid-out leader of yesterday. For this was something special . . . the arrival of Lavrenti P. Beria . . . Beria, the Master of the Bloodbaths . . . Beria, the lord high executioner, top fingerman . . . director of purges . . . the man who had for so many years haunted off so many heads.

Now the man who had given so many "the treatment" was getting it fully. There was no great surprise among the ghosts of the purged. They knew the pattern well. The routine was old stuff to them. Now they read the official announcements.

"After listening to the report of the presidium by G. M. Malenkov as regards the criminal action of L. P. Beria intended to undermine the Soviet State in the interests of foreign capitalists, the Central Committee decided to remove him and expel him as an enemy of the Communist Party and the Soviet people."

"Where have we heard those words before?" the ghosts of the butchered men chuckle. "He was a bourgeois renegade and an agent of imperialism," the ghosts read on.

"That one, too!" they exclaim. "L. P. Beria was an adventurer and a hireling of imperialistic forces seeking the restoration of capitalism. The people's enemy has been unmasked," they read.

"Interesting, these old recordings," says a purged companion of Stalin. "Who's the current disk jockey?"

"Malenkov. I believe," replies another.

"The same old routine, even to word and phrase and sentence," the ghosts sigh. They recognize the old pattern . . . the sudden switch from the arm around a shoulder to two hands around a throat . . . the warm smile turned into a freezing glare . . . the repudiation by bosom friends . . . the swift charges, the expulsion, the mock trial and the spatter of bullets against a wall. Nothing new. Strictly in accordance with the script of jungle men proclaiming brotherhood, killers professing a love of justice, nervous, furtive, swift-moving men of far-off order, another bloodbath in the interest of honor and decency!

The ghosts shake their heads. So this is justice and understanding! This is the blueprint for a better world! No tears for Beria, however. For he was framer of the routine, a willing stager of the swiftest purges, a believer in all the things of which he had become a victim. He had been in on the bloodbaths from the beginning, a tool at first, and then the ruthless master of secret police methods, the knock on the door, the dark cell and the firing squads.

Now the ghosts of the purged begin to turn to a little doorway, through which the former First Deputy Prime Minister comes hurrying. Ever a stickler for precision, he gets off his knees and moves to close the door.

"Leave it open," says one who had come the same way by the same pattern.

"Yes, there will be others!" the butchered leaders agree, giving way to eerie laughter.

Moscow Song of Confidence

If you trust me like I trust you
Our days on earth will be quite few.

It is palpably erroneous, but we have just heard a report of a high Soviet official who sleeps with ONLY ONE eye open . . . Jim Lucas' dispatches from the Korean battlefield are unsurpassed by anything Ernie Pyle ever wrote . . . Extras rehearsing in "Knights of the Round Table" in England have struck for more pay because they have to work in armor . . . What? King Arthur surrounded by pickets? Harry Truman got home to Missouri to find he had forgotten to leave the keys to his New York hotel rooms, thus proving he has much in common with all of us . . . Judge Sam Lebowitz, bidding for the mayoralty of New York with a red-hot attack on crime and corruption and the failure to jail big offenders, helped keep many of them free when he was one of the top criminal lawyers in the East . . . Ann Sheridan lays it all to tomato juice . . . Since the publication of a book by Polly Adler, we hear a number of authors have come to New York publication houses and asked to see the "brother editor."

Vanishing Americanism: "Here's a dollar; keep the CHANGE!"

Robert S. Allen Reports

Eventual Emergency Of Red Army As Top Power Is Seen

Washington—Four men hold the key to what may happen in the "murderous struggle" for supremacy among the Red czars of the blood-drenched Kremlin.

That's what Ambassador Bohlen is saying at private conferences here.

The career diplomat, an outstanding authority on Russia who foretold what is taking place there, lists the fatal quartet as follows:

L. M. Kaganovich, Deputy Premier, brother-in-law of the late Josef Stalin, and long a top Soviet ruler. Kaganovich, who has powerful ties with the Red Army and the industrial bureaucracy, was chiefly instrumental in getting Malenkov his first Kremlin job as Stalin's secretary.

Marshall Alexander Vassilievsky and George Zhukov, the two most powerful military chiefs. Both have notable battle records. Zhukov captured Berlin and had cordial relations with President Eisenhower when he commanded Allied forces. Largely because of that, Stalin shelved Zhukov, but that did not impair the latter's great prestige and influence in the Red Army. Several weeks after Stalin's death, Zhukov returned to Moscow as Chief of Staff of the Army. He and Vassilievsky are close friends and wield tremendous weight through their sway over the military. Actually, they overshadow Marshal Bulganin, the Defense Minister, who is on good terms with them. The three are the real rulers of the military, with Bulganin the "junior partner."

Nikita Khrushchev, little-known Secretary of the Communist Party, a strategic job which Stalin held throughout his lifetime after ruthlessly using it to make himself supreme. "Khrushchev zoomed into the limelight when it was suddenly announced he was taking over from Malenkov as Party Secretary. While the new Premier approved Khrushchev's selection, the younger careerist is a power in his own right in the Party apparatus, which with the Army and Secret Police (former-ly headed by the purged Beria) comprise the three ruling elements in Russia.

Possible Chess—Ambassador Bohlen deems it highly significant that not one of the four key figures is tied up with the dread Secret Police.

In his opinion that explains why it was Beria and not Malenkov who got the ax. Malenkov's ties are with the Communist machine and the equally potent Military, through his relations with Kaganovich and the three Army Marshals, old friends of Kaganovich.

When the latter, with the approval of Foreign Minister Molotov, threw their weight to Malenkov, that was the end of Beria.

That doesn't mean the terroristic power of the Secret Police is broken. It still wields immense authority and continues a highly dangerous factor in the inner struggle for control. But the downfall of Beria is viewed as strong evidence that the Secret Police has sustained a smashing blow from the other two ruling elements, the Party and the Red Army.

That combination in itself is viewed as highly significant. It is taken to mean the Party had to seek the aid of the military to overthrow the Secret Police. That is a tremendously important development.

It could foreshadow the eventual emergence of the Red Army as the top power in Russia.

Former Ambassador George Kennan, the other leading U.S. authority on the Soviet, is of the opinion this is very likely to happen in the ferocious struggle for control.

Kennan believes that in the end a military leader will wind up as the No. 1 man.

Meanwhile, Western authorities are closely scanning Khrushchev's background and record. One important clue has been uncovered in the proceedings of the 19th Communist Party Congress that took place early last year.

This heretofore overlooked reference is in the account of a resolution offered by Kaganovich to create a special commission to draw up a new Party program "in the light of modern conditions and international developments."

It has been discovered that one of the members of this all-powerful group, which included Stalin, Molotov, Beria, Malenkov and Kaganovich, was the then-unknown Khrushchev.

The proceedings also reveal that Kaganovich played a leading role in this Congress, making three major addresses. At a Communist Congress, that only happens by careful pre-arrangement. The significant reference to Khrushchev in the proceedings is as follows:

"Comrade Kaganovich submits for examination by the 19th Party Congress the following resolution. The Congress decided that during the period since the 8th Party Congress, 1919, when the leading program of the Party was adopted, radical changes have taken place both in the field of international relations and in the fields of the program and the tasks of the Party . . .

"Hence the Congress decides (1) to consider it necessary and timely to carry out a revision of the existing program of the Party, (2) to take as guidance the new principles of Comrade Stalin, (3) to entrust revision of the program to a commission composed of Stalin, Molotov, Kaganovich, Beria, Malenkov, Saburov, Yudin and Khrushchev . . ."

George Sokolsky Says...

Lack Of Proper Intelligence Service Lost Us Beria's Popular Revolt Try

The Center Of Power

It is often difficult for a people who live under a Constitution providing for stated elections and an orderly change of officials to understand another form of government in which power is achieved by murder. Yet, every change of government in Russia, since the fall of Kerensky in 1917, was marked by a struggle among powerful and ambitious men who employed murder as a weapon to achieve their ends. Since Lenin took over in 1917, there have only been two actual changes in the control of the state and neither of them orderly.

Lavrenti Beria was undoubtedly one of the most powerful men in Russia under Stalin, being the head of the NKVD, the secret police, whose function it is to guard the state, put down its enemies, anticipate revolution and control the Communist parties throughout the world, including the American.

In every embassy, consulate, Russian trading mission and national Communist party anywhere on earth, at least one or more representatives of the NKVD is situated. Whether he is the ambassador or a chauffeur, he is named the front man. Many were appointed by Beria and were loyal to him personally.

For instance, we speak of Vishinsky or Gromyko or Malik at the United Nations, but behind them, perhaps in a very obscure position, is an NKVD man whose habit it has been to report to Beria. No matter what a Politburo member may want or do, the NKVD (and its predecessors the GPU or the CHEKA) watched to make sure that there was no betrayal of the state.

Beria's predecessors, Yagoda and Yezhov, were purged. Yagoda was an interesting character because his operations occurred during the period of Stalin's emergence to power. Yagoda was undoubtedly a supporter of Stalin against Trotsky; yet there is evidence that his sympathies were with the Right-Wing Bolsheviks. Yagoda helped Stalin destroy most of the old Bolsheviks. In the end, Stalin purged Yagoda and had him killed.

It took Stalin about 12 years to consolidate his power against the old Bolsheviks and finally, he had to resort to murder. The present struggle for power moves at a swifter pace. Had the United States had an adequate intelligence service and a competent psychological warfare agency, advantage could have been taken of Beria's efforts to stimulate a popular revolt against the Kremlin. Instead, the United States sat on its hands and thus strengthened the position of Malenkov.

In this country are a large number of Beria's agents. How large a number, how they are distributed, where they are placed, I do not know, but I should imagine that the FBI does know. The FBI is the only agency of our government that is adequately staffed for counter-intelligence of this nature. Beria's men throughout the world are now living in terror because they know, from past experience, that some of them will be purged; that others will be assassinated as General Krivitsky was assassinated at a Washington hotel. They know that some of the most active anti-Communists, who have been disclosing data to the FBI and to Congressional committees, were Yagoda's men who, when their boss was purged, took refuge in this country, and provided information.

This is likely to happen again. Malenkov and Beria were equals; one controlled the party, the other the largest and most effective police power in the world. The party triumphed over the police in the first show of power.

Beria's men will now be hunted everywhere. Whoever was close to him will be accused of conspiring with him to bring about a counter-revolution in East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland. Some in the United States will seek asylum, which they can get if they contact the FBI. Their day is done and they know it.

Stalin's purges were designed to produce a dictatorship and always preceded some warlike step. Will Malenkov follow that design, too? He will still have to struggle against Molotov and Bulganin. Molotov has the reputation of not being too smart; yet he has managed to outlive all old Bolsheviks but one, Kaganovich. Will Molotov be killed by Malenkov or will he do the killing before the Russians try to "unify" Germany?

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

From California comes a story about stars.

Stars, the item said, fall into two categories. One is exemplified by Andromeda Nebula, of which I must admit, I had never heard. But there are so many foreign actresses coming over here now that one cannot be expected to know them all. I supposed she was one of those Italian stars like Anna Mangani.

This type of star, according to the report, is "quite involved" in behavior. "They brighten, dim a bit, level off and then dim a great deal more, before they repeat the process."

How true, I thought, I was thinking of all the wonderful stars who once shone so brightly, then were given supporting roles, until radio and television rescued them.

Once again they shone brightly until finally—particularly after the advent of video—we got tired of them, they leveled off, and sank into oblivion.

The second category of stars never becomes very bright, it said. They just shine a little while, then dim off—and repeat the process ad infinitum.

But this category, while less brilliant, is also less explosive, less pretentious and leads a much more regular and peaceful life.

What an excellent description of show business, I said to myself.

A description that can be applied not only to show business, however, but to life in general.

But what was this?

I read on and suddenly noticed that the story wasn't about show business at all.

It mentioned Dr. Ealter Baade, the famous astronomer at the Mt. Wilson and Palomar Observatories. It also mentioned Dr. Harlow Shapley of Harvard, another noted astronomer.

And then I noticed my mistake. Andromeda Nebula wasn't an Italian movie actress at all, but a great collection of billions of stars like the Milky Way.

The report wasn't from Hollywood, but from Pasadena, the heaven of astronomers.

Social Planning Committee Explains Stand On Child Health

Concerned Over Group's Move To Disband

The Social Planning Committee of the Community Chest has expressed grave concern over the action of the Child Health Committee in disbanding. The planning committee at its meeting had gone on record as believing that there are areas in which a Child Health Committee can function advantageously.

The recommendation of the Social Planning Committee that the position of a paid executive secretary to the Child Health Committee be temporarily discontinued came at a meeting after much discussion, and was brought to a focus by the death of Miss Helen Kulp, who had been executive secretary of Child Health since its organization in 1933.

It was mutually agreed by all members of the Social Planning Committee that the late Miss Helen Kulp had rendered a unique and invaluable service for many years throughout the county. The committee felt that her type of service would be hard to replace and in view of the changes which have occurred in Child Health Service in the county drew up their recommendations.

The major change they considered was the advent of the compulsory school health examinations which replaced the examining clinics formerly conducted by the Child Health Committee although Child Health continued to accept referrals following the school examinations.

In their study of the work of the Child Health Committee, the Social Planning Committee interviewed the nursing groups which cooperate with Child Health work and their opinions were read at the meeting.

School Nurses

Miss Charlotte Shupp, school nurse in the East Stroudsburg schools: "We should be able to take care of referrals in regard to the remedial work for the pupils in the East Stroudsburg Schools. It seems that the problem would hinge more on rural schools where they don't have a full-time nurse."

Mrs. Martha Kintz, school nurse in the Stroudsburg schools: "It would be possible for us to take care of part of the needed corrections in the schools of the borough without the help of the Child Health Committee, but Miss Kulp's work in Child Health has been of great help to me in checking the children who needed the corrections and in making the appointments with the doctors."

State Clinic Nurses

Mrs. Foster Minnich, secretary of the State Clinic: "The chief help the state clinic nurses have received from the Child Health program has been in the scheduling of appointments with the various doctors concerning corrections. The clinic has taken care of practically all of the transportation of its cases. I feel the clinic can handle everything except the collection and administration of the special funds. I also feel, if there is a reorganization, some provision should be made for a family service worker."

Visiting Nurses

Mrs. Virginia DePuy, executive director of Public Health Nursing group: "The visiting nurses have made referrals concerning children in need of corrections when they have come across them in homes in which they have served. In the last two months they have made possible about 10 referrals. The Public Health Nursing Group has adopted the policy that it cannot help with the transportation of cases because it is not set up to do so."

Meetings of the various nursing groups with Miss Kulp had been begun for the purpose of group clearance to prevent an overlapping in case of referrals. A great deal of remedial work has been done through the tonsil program of the Monroe County Registered Nurses Club. The main problem is in the handling of special fund and I suggest that it might be done by the welfare secretaries in the various contributing groups.

Mrs. Bernice All of the Department of Public Assistance, said that through the department a school medical fund was available. This fund has not been used because of the availability of local funds, she said.

The Social Planning Committee then drew up the following recommendations which they submitted to the Board of Directors of the Committee Chest. Those recommendations were:

"Because of the changes that have occurred in Child Health Service in the county during the past few years, the Social Planning Committee feels that a reorganization is necessary and that the office of a paid executive secretary should not be continued.

"If this policy does not work, then other steps can be taken later. It was the sense of this committee that this should be tried thus giving an opportunity to see if the present nursing service can be coordinated to carry out Child Health work. However, it was felt that there is room for an active Child Health Committee even though there is not a paid executive."

In a further recommendation to the Board of Directors of the

Some Farm Crops, Gardens And Lawns Feeling Effects Of Continued Dry Spell

Monroe County's continued dry spell is having an effect on some crops, home lawns and gardens, but it hasn't reached the danger point yet, according to Arthur Ifft, county agriculture agent.

"There hasn't been a 'good-soaking rain' since Memorial Day, according to Ifft, and the heat may be taking its toll.

Most seriously affected by the lack of rainfall are such crops as potatoes and small grains, specifically oats in some areas of the county. Some home garden plots are in a bad way, too, Ifft indicated, along with the green grass in residential areas.

Whether the temporary dryness is serious depends largely on the type of soil.

Gravel or shale soil dries out quickly, according to Ifft, while the lowlands and soils with more clay deposits hold moisture longer.

On some Monroe farms, pasture land is beginning to show advanced effects of the dryness, however.

The absence of heavy rainfall has had one very beneficial effect working in the farmer's favor, Ifft said. Hay crops have been harvested with "very little rain," thereby preventing loss of cut hay through excess moisture and mildew.

A round-up of prices in Monroe and neighboring counties showed these prices paid to producers by the local dairy plants in April:

Monroe $5.68; Carbon $5.15; Lehigh $4.73; Northampton $5.07; Pike $5.47; and Wayne $4.72. These figures compared with an average throughout the state of $4.96.

Price paid by receiving stations for out-of-state plants was $4.49 in Northampton and $3.89 in Wayne. Price paid by manufacturing plants in Northampton was $4.17.

Chest, the Social Planning Committee recommended that in the event of a reorganization of Child Health work, provision should be made for a Family Service.

The board of directors of the Chest forwarded the recommendations to the Child Health Committee and asked that they defer any definite action on hiring an executive secretary until the board of directors of the Chest had an opportunity to study the recommendations of the Social Planning Committee. At the same time, they said they would consider the recommendation the Child Health Committee wished to present.

The Child Health Committee after discussing the possibility of continuing without a paid executive secretary, decided that it would be impossible to do so and disbanded the committee.

Mrs. Eugene Martin, chairman of the Social Planning Committee, stressed the amicable relationship between their group and Child Health, and said that the recommendations were purely advisory, and might be accepted or rejected by the directors of the Chest at their August meeting.

"We are gravely concerned that the so-called 'marginal' child shall have full health protection in this county," she said. "This child is not eligible for corrections from DPA funds and for this reason we feel that the county fund from the commissioners and from public spirited groups such as the Lions, the Elks and the CLU Club needs to be continued and administered for this purpose. This is one area in which a Child Health Committee can be of real service in working with the existing nursing groups."

Dr. Theodore S. Hsu will be out of town July 23 to August 9, 1953. Office hours as usual, August 10, 1953.—Adv.

Mrs. Widdoss Succumbs At Swiftwater

Swiftwater—Mrs. Lillian A. Widdoss, widow of William Widdoss, died at her home here at 8:30 a. m. yesterday. She had been in ill health seven months.

A daughter of the late Amos and Elizabeth Beers Johnson, of Tannersville, Mrs. Widdoss had been a resident of the Swiftwater area her entire life.

She was a former owner and operator of Casa Loma Inn, Mount Pocono, for 30 years.

Mrs. Widdoss was a member of the Tannersville Reformed Church. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Alvin Niering and Mrs. John Hamblin, Swiftwater, and two grandsons.

Third Street Man Held On Two Charges

A $10 fine for disorderly conduct was levied yesterday against Ernest Adams, 30, of 107 N. Third St., Stroudsburg.

Still pending against Adams is a charge of assault and battery filed by a woman, Iva Miller, of the same address. On this charge Adams is free without bail.

He was arrested at 3:05 a. m. yesterday by Stroudsburg police and taken before Justice of the Peace Herbert G. Bonser later in the day. He was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Police Authorities Launch Noise Abatement Program Aimed At Hotrod Drivers

The heat's on the hotrods around Mount Pocono. The first arrest has been made and more will follow, troopers said yesterday.

The straw which broke the area's back was a series of loud, hotroddish noises which spurted, sputtered, fumed and roared throughout the Mountainhome and Canadensis area—at three o'clock in the morning.

Within two hours 15 telephone complaints had been registered by people who'd been noised awake, troopers said.

Pfc. Joseph Mekuta found the source of the noise. Police said it was the car of Harry Rider Jr., 19, Canadensis tree trimmer, who was arrested near Onawa Lodge later in the day.

He will be charged with reckless driving, police said, before Justice of the Peace Henry Price, Cresco. The crackdown on hotrodding will continue, troopers told sleepless residents.

Fall From Car Breaks Man's Pelvis

Samuel Ott, Bangor RD2, fractured his pelvis in several places yesterday in a fall outside his barn yesterday.

He was reported in good condition at the General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, where he was taken by ambulance and admitted at 4 p. m.

A relative said Ott backed his car out of the barn to visit his daughter. He stood on the back bumper to wipe the rear window clean. Getting down again, he caught the cuff of his trousers on the bumper and fell to the ground. The fracture resulted.

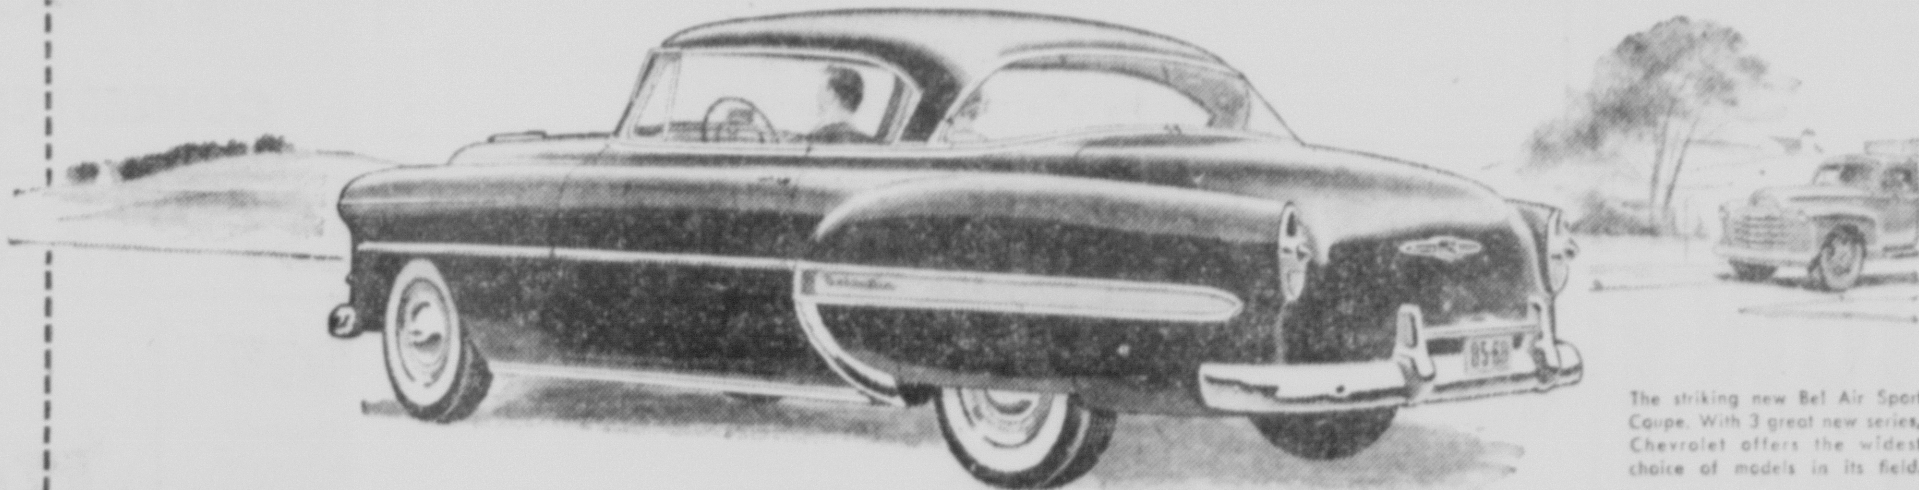

The weathermen, as you might know, had picked the time some months ago. The day was clear.

The sun was bright, their picnic was a happy sight. But, sad to say, as you might guess, a cloud burst spoiled their happiness, and while they fled the picnic ground, the weather prophets almost drowned.

Legislature Delays State Salary Boosts

Harrisburg, (U.P.) A salary increase for 40,000 state workers was held up in the Legislature yesterday pending a conference of House and Senate leaders to decide on its size.

Gov. John S. Fine urged an increase early in the 1953 session but the now broken tax deadlock prevented action on the governor's request for a 10 per cent boost.

Meanwhile the Pennsylvania State Employees Council (AFLE) urged the governor that less than a 10 per cent increase "would be a gross injustice to state employees and their families."

"We ask that you urge the House Appropriations Committee to fulfill your request for a 10 per cent increase to all employees. The morale of the state employees is at an all-time low," the telegram said.

In addition the council asked Fine to institute a 40-hour 5-day work week in state institutions by executive order.

The 10 per cent boost would cost 15 million dollars for a full two years. A 5 per cent raise or a flat $250 raise also have been mentioned as possibilities.

To The Editor:

Wanted, G. I. Joe, to serve three years in the newly organized P. N. Guards. Come on, Joe! Come on, Jim! Let's get in the best company G. I. 109th Inf. (NGUS) Company. Come to the army on Monday night. Help us get another famous 28th Division started. Enlist in a real live and up and coming outfit. Regular army pay, with two weeks training at camp. Come on, G. I. Joe, look over the new retirement setup for National Guardsmen. Yes, we old timers sure have served the State a long time but we sure feel proud, that we have lived long enough to see the retirement system working.

Yes, you can be proud of your past records in any Guard Company, 109th Infantry because you never let us down, in Peace or War! Let us old Guard men get behind the men that enlist in the newly organized company. We can be helpful in many ways. Citizens and businessmen can be helpful because a new N. G. Company means a new payroll for Monroe County. Yes, Citizens, very few realize the amount of money that a National Guard Company is paid and very few also fail to realize that this money is spent in Monroe County. Business men, give the officers a helping hand. Just add a few lines to your ads. I am sure the future Co. G. men will be repaying you twofold and over!

Come on, civic clubs, show your selfsame pride that you have shown in the war time spirit! Help a real famous Co. G. become a real peace-time company.

Young men! Enlist now. Come to the Army on Monday night.

There is strength in numbers, strength in Peace.

Come on, you old soldiers! Old Soldiers never die. They keep enlisting in the darn best outfit. Yes, you all have to admit what was best for Grandpa and Father has been the best for their sons. (Co. G. 109th Inf. Reg.) Come on, old G. Men, get in the recruits. Yes, somebody is home again! In Peace or War, they serve with honor and they make our country a wonderful place to enjoy that Peace. Don't let such a proud record be so quickly forgotten, because we forget too soon when we enjoy that Peace.

Welcome, citizens. Visit the best darn armory in the State. Meet the citizen soldiers, that we feel so proud about. A helping hand now, maybe a future of that hard fought for Peace.

Once a G. Man, always a G. Man.

Yours truly,

Nomination Of Levy Hit At Hearing

Washington, (AP)—A Senate Judiciary subcommittee yesterday heard opposition to confirmation of J. Julius Levy, Scranton, Pa., to be U. S. district attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania.

The witness was Burton E. Howards, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who described himself as the editor and publisher of what he said was an independent miner's weekly.

He told the committee it is his "firm belief" that Levy, "on the basis of his conduct and activities as a lawyer is not the proper person to be U. S. district attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania."

Levy's confirmation is favored by Sens. Martin and Duff, Pennsylvania Republicans.

Howards said his opposition to Levy stemmed from the latter's appearance as an attorney for defendants in a GI trade school case that cost the government "millions of dollars."

Asserting that Levy had "devious ways of winning cases," Howards said he was successful "when there's a corrupt judge on the bench."

"He can't win (cases)," Howards said, "when he faces an honest judge."

He urged the committee to call former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath, former Sen. Myers (D-Pa.) and a Pennsylvania secretary of state he did not identify by name, to testify so as to shed what he said would be more light on Levy's activities.

Howard agreed with Sen. Langer (R-ND) that Levy, as an attorney was within his rights in defending persons who might have been dishonest.

"Well," Langer inquired "did he use illegal or corrupt means in winning acquittals in such cases?"

"Yes," Howards said, "in the so-called GI schools racket." He alleged that the prosecution of the numerous defendants was "fixed" and that former Atty. Gen. McGrath had "interfered with the whole thing."

He said that "some of the people" involved in the school case had been convicted but that there were "about" 75 other persons who, he said, "didn't even appear before the grand jury."

Howards also disputed Levy's statement. In an earlier appearance before the committee, that he had an average income of "about $15,000 a year."

"Everybody knows," the witness said, "that Levy's income was six to five figures."

When Langer asked him what proof he had to substantiate such a statement, Howards replied:

"I didn't make that as a statement but that's what people say."

Langer first said that the nomination would be referred to the full judiciary committee to decide a future course of action. Later he said the subcommittee would meet first to decide what to report to the full committee.

Utility Firm's Trade Offer Takes Effect

Charles E. Oakes, Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. president, announced yesterday that PP&L's exchange offer to stockholders of the Scranton Electric Co. has become effective. Scranton's shareowners deposited 91 percent of the common stock and 91 percent of the preferred stock, as a class, for exchange.

Mr. Oakes pointed out that it will now be possible to proceed with plans for a merger of the Scranton company with PP&L, to occur toward the end of this year, subject to required approval.

Mr. Oakes also said that operation of Scranton Electric power plants, transmission and distribution systems, its commercial offices and other departments will continue in much the same fashion as at present. Scranton Electric service area will ultimately become an additional PP&L division.

Mr. Oakes indicated that no changes in management or personnel are anticipated for the present. He pointed out that normal turn-over in the combined operations of the two companies will largely absorb any duplication of personnel caused by the consolidation.

Former Vaudeville Headliner Now Dealer In Antiques In Stroudsburg

By Lenord Randolph
Consider this a partial story of the life and times of Emmett Guilfoyle, "The Funniest Man In The World."

At 67, Emmett is living in semi-retirement on N. Ninth St., in Stroudsburg. Right at the moment he's operating an antique shop known as "The Trotting Horse Barn."

But to call Guilfoyle an antique shop operator would be a grave mistake. Actually, he's serving as ambassador-at-large for that greatest of all entertainment kingdoms—vaudeville.

So far as Emmett is concerned "vaudeville" didn't die. It was strangled, throttled and pulled off-stage while it was still alive and kicking. The man has a book-length, unabridged memory to back him up.

To begin at the beginning, Emmett Guilfoyle got his start as a "pro" at the tender age of ten years. Teamed up with a school-teacher who played piano, Guilfoyle was paid $10 for a singing job at the "old Iroquois Democratic Club in the Bronx, N. Y." He offered to split with the pianist but she'd have none of it.

From that day onward, Emmett was sold on the stage as a career. Two years later he packed up a suitcase (filled with assorted ties and shirt fronts collected in the interim period) and ran away with a minstrel show.

He was one-fourth of a quartet made up of similarly young and inexperienced gentlemen from his neighborhood. It wasn't much, but it was a beginning.

Within the space of 15 years he was getting top-jobs on the vaudeville circuit. Those led to featured spots with such big-name entertainers as Lillian Russell and Anna Held.

With the Held company, Emmett (who had changed his stage name to "Gilfoyle" because it was simpler) became widely-known and highly respected. His act or "turn" was well received in theaters all over the nation.

Like most good comedians, Emmett has a "comic philosophy." Genuine humor, he believes, should have its roots imbedded in a realization of the irony and sadnesses of life.

In perfecting his own "turn," Guilfoyle kept a sharp eye toward one of the professional comedian's worst enemies—easily copied material.

Emmett worked hard to get substance only he could do into his act.

"Years ago, he recalls, "when I was in burlesque, the girls couldn't come out with anything bare. Had to wear tights from here all the way up."

Guilfoyle prided himself on a tight, compact act. In those days, the mark of a true artist was his ability to "build" from one laugh to another.

Emmett, dressed in a remarkably unlikely tophat, a cutaway coat and an almost-ludicrous over-large bow-tie, gauged his actions with a precise kind of comic science which aimed for the titter first, a giggle next, then a guffaw and ending with a aisle-rolling belly laugh.

This latter kept the audience busy laughing long enough to let the comedian settle back, relax for a moment and, if he wished to, change the course of his humor from satire to a more delicate approach.

It was a good formula. With some variations here and there, it carried its master through forty-plus years on American stages of one kind or another.

After the death of Anna Held, Emmett teamed up with the "milk-bath lady's" daughter, Anna Jr. The act was a success, but a few years later Emmett changed partners.

Elsie Lange sang popular and semi-classic songs, appeared on stage in a variety of costumes (most of them outrageously expensive and highly theatrical) and, in general, provided the "pretty girl" element for an otherwise lone wolf act.

While Elsie was offstage changing from one gorgeous dress into another even more gorgeous, Emmett threw himself full-force into the business of keeping the paying customers "happy."

Sometimes that was a pretty tough order to fill. Vaudeville audiences, highly critical by nature and demonstrative only by necessity, were tough nuts to crack now and then.

"In my time you had to have that audience laughing the minute you walked on the stage," Emmett says. "If you didn't there was a good chance the management wouldn't pay."

Most managers were happy with the Guilfoyle-Lange combination, but some of Emmett's happiest days (or nights) in the theater were spent at the request of the War Camp Community Service organization.

Roughly equivalent to the World War Two United Service Organization, WCCS provided entertainment for soldiers, sailors and marines during the first of the world conflicts.

Emmett was a headliner on many of those shows. He starred, just by way of an example, on the steamship S.S. Leviathan when it made some of its earliest voyages.

Other acts appearing on the same bill on the Leviathan were Dunninger, the mental marvel mindreader and an unknown fellow named Paul Whiteman, who at that time, was leading one of his first bands. Whiteman later went on to become known as the "father of American jazz" (by everyone except jazzmen, that is).

Emmett Guilfoyle

The Leviathan engagements took place in 1923. Guilfoyle still possesses a citation given to him by the WCCS for his "untiring efforts to entertain men in the armed services."

For Guilfoyle the road of vaudeville stretched from New York to Ocean City to Jacksonville and on to London, Dublin and other points in the British Isles.

He and Elsie Lange were headlining the bill at the London Palladium when a couple of little-known performers who have since become famous were still struggling for that big break. The performers were Charles Laughton and Elsa Lanchester, man and wife.

When you stop to "tick off" the names of comedians who are now "on the top," historian Guilfoyle can give you a good, rapid account of what "he or she was doing" back in the comic's own heyday.

He can recall the day when Bob Hope was a chorus boy in the "Follies." Or times when Jack Benny was still wearing pants with a shiny seat, and Burns and Allen sounded like the name of an amateur team you might have played with in Wisconsin Falls, Wisconsin.

Guilfoyle and Lange were booked into the London Palladium to follow Nora Bayes, one of the most famous of all American singer-artists. They were at the top of the heap in London.

Today, Emmett has a faded, yellowing photograph of himself and his partner taken at "The Tower of London" (where Anne Boleyn and a couple of other English queens lost their heads in the literal sense) to remember it by.

There are other photographs, too. A big one of Gilda Grey dressed in a kind of early movie sarong and a long set of beads, for example. Gilda was one of Emmett's earliest partners. They sang together in cafes for quite a spell before Gilda went on to become Hollywood's answer to night baseball.

An avid prizefight fan, Guilfoyle boasts a news shot of the Galento-Louis fight in 1939 among his souvenirs. The photo was taken at that precise moment in the third round right after Galento had scored a knockdown over Louis. The expressions on the faces of Galento, Louis and the referee are memorable. Emmett says Tony looks like he was saying "Oh, no, Joe! Don't die!"

Pasted in the scrapbook—a small one since Emmett has little use for material things—is a playbill from the Capital Theater in Albany. It advertises the "Gallagher and Shean Follies" with "25 People 25" and "10—Beautiful Girls—10." All this in small type. Then in type twice as large and six times as black—the playbill says: "Special Added Attraction! GILFOYLE AND LANGE."

The movie playing at the Capitol then was "Arsene Lupin," starring John and Lionel Barrymore. No attention at all was paid by the management to the movie in its ad. The king was still vaudeville—but the revolution was already under way.

Within a matter of years, the movie business had begun to take over. One vaudeville theater circuit after another was bought up by Hollywood interests.

Then, because the movie had to be made the "star attraction," movie companies began selling their wares by "block booking," a system which gives the individual theater owner less choice than he had originally on the product he is going to display.

Before long the theater owner who insisted he "had to have at least four acts of vaudeville" was being convinced that it really wasn't necessary at all. Theaters which had formerly employed 15 to 30 artists per week were closing their doors to the trained seals, the jugglers, the six-day diva and the soulful comedian.

All through show business the death knell tolled for vaudeville. Most people began to nod in agreement when somebody intoned a notice that it was dead.

Emmett Guilfoyle and a tight little band of other enthusiasts refused to believe it. Today—with television using nearly all the vaude turns and the New York Palace theater doing land-office business with it eight acts—there seems to be a basis for the comic's argument.

But it wasn't the movies, alone, that put the skids under vaudeville. Another contribution was made by science in the form of over-large theaters and amplifying systems set up around ship-board stages.

The way Emmett sees it, the comic who had any subtlety in his act whatever was completely lost out with rewrites of Joe Miller and a completely vocal delivery—had been born.

And so it came to pass that the man who had been first on the American stage with "sound effects parodies" of popular songs gradually slipped away from the limelight.

Emmett had initiated an act using the satire of song long before Spike Jones was in swaddling clothes. He used to do a "straight" version of "In The Shade of The Old Apply Tree" first. Then he had a "stooge" who came on to hunk the horns, clank the chains and scratch the washboard. "It was eight full minutes of belly laughs," he recalls now.

Whatever happened to vaudeville, it isn't dead. There's still a man named Emmett Guilfoyle who carries it around with him—his story, comedy and all.

At the "Trotting Horse Barn," Emmett is always on hand to talk over the rise and fall of the American theater. He's a tough critic who still has his own comic sense and discrimination in operation.

"He's also a man with a long memory which doesn't seem likely to falter in the future. In case it does, there will be plenty of bowties, cutaways, tophats and clipplings to snap it back in line.

Like the notation on the inside of his straw hat which reads: "This 59 year old Disney cockney style hat is the sole property of Emmett Guilfoyle... The funniest man in the world."

That's not a bad title to carry around under the lid of your stiff, white straw skimmer.

Christianity Endangered, Says Speaker

Allentown — "Christianity in this era of national prosperity is in a time of serious danger," declared Herbert Hass, pastor of the Norristown Adventist Church, yesterday at the Seventh-day Adventist state-wide convocation now in session.

"Christianity is competing again with the tremendous power of mid-century pleasures, amusements, and vices," said the Norristown pastor to delegates and friends from all sections of East Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Citing the lackadaisical interest in spiritual matters and Christian stewardship in the nation, the speaker challenged the assembly to strong Christian living. Drawing the parallels of the soldiers' experiences in Korea he also admonished alertness to the dangers of these times of comparative ease.

Pastor Hass pointed to the greatest want of the world by quoting the words of a well known Christian author, Mrs. Ellen G. White.

"The greatest want of the world is the want of men, men who will not be bought or sold; men who in their inmost souls are true and honest; men who do not fear to call sin by its right name; men who will stand for right though the heavens fall." He pointed out that only integrity of the highest order will restore confidence in democratic government and the American home.

To meet the perils of mid-century living he cited the urgent need of sharpened spiritual senses by means of serious Bible study. The point is not Bible reading marathons or number of times the Bible is read through, but serious reading of the Holy Bible—too many play at Bible reading, he stated.

The ten day sessions being held at the denomination's camp site, Emmanuel Grove, is scheduled to close Saturday night. The public is invited to this 43rd annual encampment.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY was celebrated quietly yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Yetter at their Chipperfield Drive farm. Mrs. Yetter prepares to cut cake given by her daughter, Mrs. Robert Layton. Bouquet was wired to couple by their son, Richard, from his Lebanon, Pa., home.

The Nathaniel Yetters Mark Golden Wedding Anniversary

A quiet family celebration yesterday afternoon marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Yetter, Chipperfield Drive, Stroud Township.

Married July 15, 1903, in East Stroudsburg Methodist parsonage, the couple is the parents of two children: Mrs. Robert Layton, Chipperfield Drive, and Richard Yetter, Lebanon, Pa. There are eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Yetter, native of Scranton, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Seidon Shick. Mr. Yetter was born in Smithfield Township, one of the 11 children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Yetter.

Mr. Yetter was a glass blower for eight years prior to purchasing the farm where he resides. He worked for East Stroudsburg Glass Company and a Streeter, Ill. firm. The advent of machinery which replaced manpower, resulted in his leaving the trade and entering farming. The farm where he and Mrs. Yetter reside was purchased by them 47 years ago.

Ozone Lamps For The Home Destroy Odors

A new ozone-generating lamp recently has been perfected, for use in kitchen or bathroom, to destroy odors and keep the air fresh. This is similar to the type used for some time by the meat industry to prevent fungus from growing on stored meats.

The ozone lamp also is useful in eliminating many of the airborne substances which cause hay fever, asthma and other allergies, says Dr. Hazel J. Berglund, co-author of the new book "It's NOT All in Your Mind."

Blotting Paper Cushion Shelves For Glassware

Use sheets of blotting paper from the dime or stationery store to line shelves for glassware and dishes. Its thick softness will prevent chipping and its bright color will perk up your storage space. Blotting paper has enough body so that you can join two pieces without overlapping; just press strips of cellophane tape along the joint on the under side.

Hard-Of-Hearing Child Needs Special Help From Parents

(Third of Six Articles)

By Jane Eads

Washington—Lucy didn't seem to listen to her teachers. They said she was always day-dreaming. She had started out all right in school, but now her grades were poor. The teachers began to think she might be backward.

On the playground she was cross and picky. She began to stay off by herself. Her mother said: "Lucy doesn't pay any attention to the things I say, either. She's so listless and irritable. This all began after she had the measles."

The doctor sent Lucy to an otologist, or ear specialist, who found she was losing her hearing. He cleared up an infection in her nose and throat remaining from the measles. Lucy soon regained her hearing and was her old self again.

In its booklet "The Child Who Is Hard of Hearing," the U. S. Children's Bureau says: "Most hearing loss in children is the result of repeated colds and infections in the ears, nose and throat. It often follows measles, scarlet fever, influenza or mumps. It is estimated that a million children of school-age have no more hearing than Lucy and that a million more are similarly affected in the pre-school group. Most may regain normal hearing."

But some children can never be helped to regain normal hearing. They have to be taught to speak. They have to learn how to read

The program committee includes: Roger Dunning, chairman; Mrs. Horace G. Walters, Numa Snyder, Edward C. DePuy, and Miss Minnie Bisbing. The invocation will be given by Rev. Frank Blatt. Dr. Nathan C. Meyer will preside at the meeting.

Miss Clara Lou Hart will be soloist and Shelby Carter will play her accompaniment.

Local P.O. Of A. Represented At Elizabethtown

Kellersville—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rinker, returning from a trip to western Pennsylvania, stopped at Elizabethtown where they attended a meeting of Camp 144, Patriotic Order of America. This is the home camp of Miss Ida Schreffler, a past State and National president.

The program featured installation of district officers. The motto of the order "God, Our Country, and Our Free Schools" was represented by the attendance of ministers, school board members and citizens. A large delegation of National and State officers were also present.

Among those from Monroe County besides Mr. and Mrs. Rinker were: Mrs. Flora Carls, a past State President and past National Assistant President; Mrs. Jeanette Harris, a former State pianist; Mrs. Ida Strunk, Mrs. Walter Counterman and Miss Kathryn Counterman, all members of Camp 280, Stroudsburg.

Miss Gars, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Rinker served on the installing staff. Mrs. Rinker, a teacher in the Hamilton Township schools, is a past State Assistant President from Camp 288, Saylorsburg, and is the newly-elected district president of the Monroe County camps.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Well, what do you expect in July not perfect June weather all the time, certainly, but the way we were puffing and panting and mooping out how yesterday you'd have thought it was at least 100 in the shade.

We've been spoiled, that's why by the long series of days when the temperature was just right for anything.

Certainly yesterday it was just right for sitting in the shade, and the lawn chairs at the hospital were all occupied yesterday afternoon. I can't remember reading any story about those lawn chairs, but I know that they were last summer's gift of the Barrett Hospital Auxiliary.

They presented them in honor of Lena Swaine and all the work she'd done for the hospital, and those of you who've been enjoying them might say thank you to Mrs. Swaine and the Barrett Auxiliary.

Speaking of hospital auxiliaries I notice that this week on successive days we've had announcements of coming benefits for the hospital. The General Hospital Auxiliary (the Junior Auxiliary until they began counting their gray hairs) opens its antique show on August 4. Ann Logan is also the day of the Ann Logan card party.

However the Antique Show lasts through Saturday so you'll be able to take in both of them, so don't fret. Just the same, it points up the need for some sort of clearing house for special activities. And I hope the girls who were talking it up this summer go through with their plans.

Listen To Bobby Westbrook daily, Monday through Friday, on "The Party Line" WVPO, 10:15 a.m.

Many Prizes At St. John's Church Picnic

The annual picnic of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, was held last night at the Stroudsburg Playgrounds with a good attendance. Many of the organizations had combined their July meetings with the picnic and held brief business sessions.

Emphasis of the picnic was on the social aspects, however. There were games for the children and adults and the men played quilts and there was swimming during the afternoon.

After the picnic supper prizes were awarded. Gary Meixell was the youngest child present. Frank Spangle was the oldest man and Mrs. Cora Nevel the oldest woman. The couple married the longest were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keiper.

Prizes for the games were awarded. Billy Rinehart was the peanut scramble; Lois Meixell, jarring toss; Audrey Miller, bean toss; Bobby Kiehn, cup on string; Louise Dunkelberger, chewing gum race; with a hilarious couples race being won by Floyd and Ruth Fetherman.

Bake Sale On Lawn

Delaware Water Gap—The Women of the Delaware Water Gap Methodist Church will hold a bake sale on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Nelson Lightner on Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4.

For a quick and easy sauce, mix a can of condensed cream of mushroom soup with a half cup of milk and heat. Serve with croquettes—it makes them more than just another way to use leftovers.

Dress up vanilla pudding with a crunchy garnish of crushed peanut brittle.

Top Fashion News Is On Top For Fall

By Dorothy Roe

Associated Press Fashion Editor New York (AP)—"The top news is on top this season," says Maurice Rentner, and proves it with his dramatization of the crescent shape bodice over the slim skirt for fall.

As in many other trend-setting collections, detail and trimmings are concentrated above the belt in the Rentner fashions.

The smooth rounded line is apparent in shoulders, in seamings and in the shape of the entire bodice.

Collars are trimmed with crescent motifs. Jackets close on a curving line. Pockets and pen-pens follow the crescent shape.

Affirming his faith in an era of elegance and the buying power of the American public, Rentner shows a $3,000 evening ensemble—strapless, sheath, dress and matching coat completely embroidered in iridescent sequins, making the wearer look like some fabulous mermaid.

Fur trimmings are used with imagination in the collection, a notable example being a gray wool sheath dress with black Persian at collar cuffs and hemline. This one is called "Items returned."

He uses the silk gauze of an Indian sari in a simple but elegant afternoon dress, completely lined and innocent of trimmings, gaining distinction from the richness of the fabric itself.

He likes satin ensemble for after dark, uses tremendous cummerbund sashes on a series of slim sheath cocktail and evening gowns, shows a number of hand-crocheted jeweled necklines, with pearls and rhinestones crocheted into the mesh, to add importance to simple but expensive wool or silk dresses.

Rentner does not hold with the high-collared trend seen in some collections for fall. Instead he initiates a scooped out, concave neckline which he calls the "Big Dipper."

I am a great believer in insurance. I believe in life insurance, accident insurance, health insurance, and fire insurance. I even approve of the new "wedding insurance" being offered by one company... the policy being tied with life of the valley and aimed at parents of little girls who will someday be prospective brides with wedding bills and bells in the offing. But most of all, I believe in "twin insurance" as offered prospective mothers by our Wyckoff infants department.

The latest to hit the jackpot... or perhaps I should say "bombed the bassinet" with one of these policies is Mrs. Leonard Razny Jr., of Panther. Mrs. Razny had purchased a single layette from us some time ago. Then, on July 10th she gave birth to two children—a son, Lyle Andrew, and a daughter, Linda Marie. Mrs. Razny remembered her insurance certificate from Wyckoff's and entered claim. The result—another layette, duplicating the first—has been forwarded. It is the second such award this year.

To be on the safe side, if you are a lady-in-waiting, you too should join our Wyckoff Stock Club. "Twin insurance" is the one way to avoid being caught with one diaper down and two to go.

HERE AND THERE . . .

A clock that is also a calendar, since it runs a full 400 days before pausing for a new lease on life, is attracting covetous glances these days, and at least three of my colleagues are wondering just how much it will cost them. You see, this handsome new arrival from Germany has no price tag at the moment, but it has plenty of prospective purchasers. Graceful in design it resembles, to my way of thinking, a gold and plate glass canary cage. Inside the face and various parts are of turquoise blue. Another unusual touch is the glass enclosed hubbub in the base, which shows at a glance whether or not the clock is "on the level." (Whether it is or not, I surely am when I call this timepiece a real beauty.) . . . Faced with the business of washing my hair tonight, and with the provoking problem of unruly, dry "straw," I've accepted Ann Putnam's advice and purchased Richard Hudnut's enriched creme shampoo with powdered egg. It cost only $1, and I'm told it's excellent. In any case, as of this evening the yolk's on me! . . . Also on me at the moment is a dash of Replique, the perfume by Raphael of Paris. Replique is sultry, heavy, and outrageously elegant. It whisks one right out of the office to Maxim's, and lifts one out of one's chamberlain sun dress into some imaginary conception by divetichney. This round trip ticket to a day dream costs only $3.50 a dram, or $6 the quarter ounce. A purse size flacon is $3.50, and there are nice big bottles at $10. Adventure in crystal at a fragment of its worth!

Martins Creek Shades Pocono A.C., 5-3

Four Unearned Runs Kill Home Team

Martins Creek, fighting doggedly to displace Roseto as the top team in the Blue Mountain League, picked up five runs and then fought off an eighth inning spurt by Pocono A. C. to finish on the long end of a 5-3 count at East Stroudsburg Playground last night.

The visiting Martins Creek crew scored four unearned runs off Tom Foley, right handed chucker who worked the distance for Pocono A.C. and that was the margin of victory.

Martins Creek picked up single tallies in each of the first and second innings, added two more in the fifth and then pushed a single run into paydirt in the sixth round.

Three Runs

Pocono A.C. blanked by Bill Goldworth for five frames, exploded for three runs in the seventh, but the rally failed to carry the needed weight to change the outcome of the contest.

Foley and Larry Keichner singled and both raced across the plate on a triple by Harold Freeman. Carson Deffenbaugh walked, but was out trying to steal second while Freeman raced home. Bob Wellman followed with a double but died on second base.

Goldworth held Pocono A.C. to six hits, while Martins Creek accounted for nine safeties off Foley. Foley struck out seven batters, including the side in the fourth inning.

Keichner led the Pocono A.C. attack with two hits.

Pocono A.C. plays host to Roseto, top club in the circuit, at East Stroudsburg Playground today, at 6:15 p.m.

Fehr Wins Final Wednesday Stock Car Show At Speedway; Saturday Programs To Stay

Fred Fehr, veteran stock car pilot from Easton, won the 25-lap feature event on last night's final Wednesday night stock car show to be staged by Stroudsburg Speedway this season.

Tom Garbae, owner of the local track, announced following the race that the Wednesday shows would be halted, due to the fact that suitable cars are hard to obtain at this midweek point.

Garbae was quick to add that the regular Saturday night programs, which have been outstandingly successful this season, would continue as usual. The Saturday night shows will feature three qualifying heats, a consolation grind and the feature, with approximately 50 cars in operation each Saturday.

The Stroudsburg Speedway owner pointed out that with the large number of wrecks at his track on Saturday and Nazareth on Sunday, it is virtually impossible to obtain suitable cars, both in quantity and quality. As an example 20 cars were wrecked at Stroudsburg Speedway last week and virtually all of them are still unable to run, but will be available for the Saturday night show.

"Capacity crowds have been attending the Saturday night programs at the local track and the same brand of racing will continue the remainder of the season on a one-night a week basis," Garbae added.

Fehr outdistanced a small field in the feature event, which was lengthened by 10 laps because of the small size of the entry list. Fehr took over the lead when Joe Cryan, Oxford, N. J., who led midway in the race, crashed into the wall off the first turn.

Cryan won the first of two consolation races.

Ken Kapp, Easton, won the first demolition race of the current season held at Stroudsburg Speedway.

"Capacity crowds have been attending the Saturday night programs at the local track and the same brand of racing will continue the remainder of the season on a one-night a week basis," Garbae added.

Major Leagues Resume Action

By Will Grimsley
New York, (AP)—It's back to the grindstone today for the major league baseball clubs, and the next seven days may be big ones in deciding whether we're in for another Yankee-Dodgers World Series.

The New York Yankees, now found human through their recent nine-game losing streak, move out west where they have an important double-header Sunday with the red-hot Chicago White Sox, followed by three games with the Cleveland Indians.

If Casey Stengel's athletes can protect all or most of their five-game lead, there may be no heading them in the late Summer stretch. If the Sox and Indians can cut into the advantage, the American League may be in for a crackerjack race.

Unsteady
The unsteady Brooklyn Dodgers, holding a one and one-half game edge in the National League, entertain the dashing St. Louis Cardinals in four games, beginning tonight, and then next weekend tackle the second place Milwaukee Braves four times at Ebbets Field.

These activities, plus the doings of the New York Giants and Philadelphia Phillies, should bring the senior circuit scramble into sharper focus. Right now only 6½ games separate the leading Dodgers from the rallying fifth place Giants, who have won eight of their last nine games.

Referee Dauber Jaeger scored it 8-4 under the Wisconsin point system. Judge Billy Lachenmeier had it 8-3, and Judge Ray Jackson said 6-3. There were more boos than cheers from the crowd that favored Fuentes throughout.

Best Showing
Fuentes, 148½, made his best showing in the first and fifth rounds when he rushed the champion and scored with both hands to the head. The blows were high, however, and didn't slow Gavilan down a bit. The second round was dull with the rugged Fuentes trying hard to get started, but finding himself tied up.

Gavilan, 152½, let out a couple of notches in the early part of the third, pounding both hands to the head and body methodically, but eased up and contended himself with keeping Fuentes away. A pair of lefts and a right to the head stopped a Gavilan flurry in the fifth, but he opened up again in the sixth and shook Fuentes up with a stiff left to the chin.

Gavilan coasted through the first two minutes of the seventh, then drove Fuentes to the ropes where he nailed him with the big punch of the bout. Fuentes pitched forward as The Kid stepped away, but he was on his feet at nine and weathered the last 20 seconds without trouble, as the champion failed to pursue his advantage.

Basin (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick is "going to take appropriate action" against three major league clubs for attempting to negotiate with Frank Leja, 17-year-old American Legion junior baseball league star first baseman, the organization's Massachusetts chairman said today.

Leja was suspended three weeks ago from the Easthampton post team after he made an eastern swing with the Cleveland Indians American League team.

Letter
Philip E. Carey, the legion's baseball state chairman, said he had been informed by the legion's national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., that it had received a letter from Frick stating the Indians, Milwaukee Braves and New York Giants were guilty of attempting to negotiate with Leja.

Seixas To Defend Crown
Haverford, (AP)—Wimbledon tennis champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia will defend his Pennsylvania title starting Monday in the 54th annual Pennsylvania State tennis championships.

Third Straight
Maureen Little Mo Connolly of San Diego, Calif., the women's Wimbledon title and who won the Keystone State crown the past three years, decided today to take a 10-day rest and not defend her championship. Her next court competition will be in the Wightman Cup play August 1-2.

Davis Cup Capt. Seixas will be after this third straight Pennsylvania crown. Miss Connolly won the title here in 1950, 1951 and 1952.

When you pay for premium gas... how much of a "premium" do you get?

The man who pays a little extra for a gallon of gasoline has a right to take it for granted that he gets something extra in return. And he does, of course.

But he takes too much for granted if he thinks he gets the same amount of extra worth in any brand he buys! For it's a simple truth that the overall quality of "premium" motor fuels varies quite widely from one brand to another!

This may surprise you, but it is proved. And it leaves you with the interesting fact that the man who always visits our Esso Dealers, and runs his car all year round on Esso Extra will have gasoline that meets the highest all-round, year-round standard of quality on the market, regardless of the competitive claims you may hear!

Here is how we can know this to be true... First, we list the eight performance qualities which automotive engineers agree are both important and measurable in a modern gasoline.

Shawnee Pro Second In Pro-Sweeps

Shawnee-on-Delaware — Henry Poe, Reading Country Club pro and "Bud" Lewis, pro at the Manufacturers C. C., Oreland, Pa., posted record six-under-par 138s to tie for the Pro-Sweepstakes which featured the opening of the Shawnee-on-Delaware Golf week at Shawnee Inn and Country Club here.

Poe, president of the Philadelphia District PGA, and Lewis, pro at the Philadelphia District PGA, established a new mark for the recently lengthened 6,767-yard championship course. Until this year the course measured 6,646 yards.

Four Under
Lewis, wielding a hot putter, carded a four under par 68 yesterday to add to his two under par 70 round of Tuesday. Poe, who had 69 for the low card Tuesday turned in another 69 yesterday.

A bogie-four on the par-three 12th yesterday cost Poe first place. He had four birds on the outgoing hole, sinking a 30-foot putt for a bird on the second; a 15-footer on the fourth and a 3-footer on the fifth. He was on the par-5 seventh green in two and two-putted for another bird.

Harry Obitz, home pro who had a 69 Tuesday, carded a 70 yesterday for a five under par 159 total and second place.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Racing fans attending last night's stock car show at Stroudsburg Speedway probably are wondering why Ray Fleming didn't drive number four, a car owned by Ray Everitt, Stroudsburg. The truth of the matter is that Fleming is reportedly unable to run at the local speedway on Wednesdays, due to his duties as a truck driver out of Allentown. Fleming will be back at the wheel of the Everitt car Saturday night and will attempt to add a fifth victory flag to the four already painted on his car.

Otto Harvi drove number four last night and also in the feature event last Saturday. Harvi took over the wheel last Saturday when Fleming suffered an injured right hand. The Fleming special is now running on alcohol and is expected to be right up among the top cars at Stroudsburg Speedway the remainder of the season. Fleming drove this same car to a fourth place finish at Hahiora two weeks ago. The query present in this column yesterday concerning the possible change of drivers in at least one car running at Stroudsburg Speedway, pertained to any car running at the local track and not necessarily area cars.

The Eagles, first half title holder in the Monroe County League and winner of the Monroe County Softball Tournament, will represent Monroe County in the class "B" state softball tournament. The fact that the Eagles will represent the area is only fitting for this team has dominated softball in this neck of the woods for the past three years. Whether Jack Fegley's hit to right field against Jack's Market on Tuesday should have been ruled a home run or a single and a three base error by Paul Miller has caused a lot of debate by those interested in softball in this area.

Jim Fritz, end and punter for the East Stroudsburg High school football team last season, is currently limping around on crutches. Jim recently dropped a can of milk on his foot and the injury requires the aid of crutches. Parking lots at Yankee Stadium are new under tents and will remain that way for several days. Martins Creek expects to attract 500 paid customers into its ball park on Sunday, when Roseto, currently leading the Blue Mountain League, supplies the opposition.

"Blackie" Reider, Reading, is currently the hottest driver in the area stock car circles. Reider owns two straight feature victories at Nazareth and also brought down the top prize at Stroudsburg Speedway last Saturday. "Ducky" DeFrank, former North Atlantic League umpire, was behind the plate in last night's baseball game between Martins Creek and Pocomo A. C. at East Stroudsburg Playground. Leonard Renaldo, one of the top umpires in the area, called the plays on the bases in the same game.

Art Boger, former Wilson Borough High football player, will attend East Stroudsburg State Teachers College in September, as will Bill Pfeffer, of Easton High, and Kenneth Fahl, Phillipsburg. Pfeffer and Fahl are also football players. Other Wilson grid-ders going to college and their school are: Walter Blich, Columbia; Fred Lipari, University of Wyoming; Ed Markley, Temple; Paul Cambrone, Millersville; Eben Sales, Swarthmore, and Hugh Gallagher, who hasn't decided on Columbia, Lafayette or Gettysburg at the present time. Jim Van Horn, another former Wilson gridder, was offered a scholarship to the University of Wyoming, but turned it down.

Norman Grekin, one of the star performers for the outstanding La Salle College basketball team the last two years, is currently coaching the Camp Akiba cage organization this summer. Grekin is expected to join the Philadelphia Warriors, of the National Basketball Association if and when the high scoring performer turns professional. Bill Bonser, Saylorsburg catcher, suffered a broken thumb this week and can't see service in Sunday's doubleheader with Lake Harmony on the Saylorsburg field. Lloyd Brong will take over the catching duties and Jack Newell will be stationed at shortstop.

Bobby Shantz and wife spent Monday and Tuesday at the Lehman Lake Club to do some fishing with Ray Steele, father of young Ray who is currently a member of the Philadelphia A's farm system. Shantz is trying to work back into the same condition that made him one of the best pitchers in the history of the A's last year. It is true that the Tohoyanna Association has folded up for the present campaign? Word making the rounds last night indicate that at least two members of the PMA club will play in the Pocono Mountains League next Sunday.

Interest is raging in all sections of Monroe County and neighboring Northampton County, as playoff time in both baseball and softball arrives on the scene. Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Pocono Mountains and Bangor Little Leagues will take part in district playoff games on Monday and Tuesday.

Monroe Silk Rallies To Down Worthington Mower, 10-9

Five Runs In Final Frame Decide Issue

Monroe Silk came off the floor last night to scrape up a 10-9 victory over Worthington Mower in a Little Bigger League of the Stroudsburg baseball game played at Gordon Griffiths field.

Worthington Mower apparently had the game in the bank when the club came back from a 3-0 deficit to score seven times in the top of the fifth and assume a 7-3 advantage.

Methodists Fall Before Cramer's, 10-6

Cramer's Lumber scored in all but one inning last night while hanging a 10-6 lacing on the Methodists in an East Stroudsburg Little League baseball game, played on the official field of the league.

The winning aggregation marched off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning and held the upper hand the remainder of the contest, but it took five runs in the top of the fifth to ice the battle for the Lumbermen.

Five tallies in the home half of the fifth brought the Methodists back into the thick of the fight, but Cramer's club picked up one more marker in the sixth and blanked the Methodists in their half of the same inning.

No games will be played in the East Stroudsburg Little League until after the district playoffs that begin on Monday, at Tamaqua, are finished, as far as Hasbargh is concerned.

Crowe Urges Better Laws On Mining

Harrisburg, Pa.—The Legislature was asked yesterday to create a special commission to find ways of improving laws on anthracite mining in Pennsylvania.

To be known as the Anthracite Mining Code Commission, the group would study existing laws and make recommendations to the next General Assembly for prospective alterations.

The request was made in a bill introduced by Chairman Montgomery F. Crowe (R-Montgomery) of the Senate Committee on Mines and Mining. The measure parallels another Senate bill setting up a similar study group for bituminous mining legislation.

As with the bituminous commission, the anthracite group would be headed by the state mines secretary and would include the attorney general, the director of the Legislative Reference Bureau and members named by the governor.

Three of the governor's appointees would come from the ranks of anthracite coal mine operations and three from the trade union representing the mine employees.

The bill would appropriate $25,000 to pay commission expenses and the salaries of technical and clerical help.

Other new Senate bills would: Authorize the commonwealth and municipalities to end their present retirement systems if they desire and transfer present funds for use in any new retirement system.

Sen. Rowland B. Mahany (R-Crawford).

Some 9,000 fingerling trout were distributed to about 15 streams and creeks throughout the Pocono mountains yesterday.

The babies arrived in cans at the Stroudsburg Postoffice, according to Fish Warden Floyd Bachman. Handling the distribution were members of the Pocono Mountains Sportsman's Association.

They distributed the 30-odd cans of fish among them and drove out to the local streams. It will be several years, probably, before the trout reach proper size.

Roughly 45,000 trout have been placed in Pocono streams this year, one sportsman said.

Two Youths Admit Thefts At Bangor

Bangor — Two Easton youths arrested early Tuesday in Allentown, admitted yesterday the theft of cash and cigarettes from three local gas stations May 14.

Bangor police revealed that Stephen Krumm, 19, of 118 N. Warren St., Easton, and a 17-year-old Easton boy confessed to Allentown police, State troopers and Bangor officers that they entered the Donald Lambert service station, N. First St., the Blue Sunoco station, Broadway and S. First St., and Halterman's station, S. Main and Broadway.

The youths told police they entered the stations by breaking windows. At Lambert's they took $40 in cash and cigarettes, took cigarettes from the Sunoco station but had little luck at Halterman's, leaving without any loot.

Quizzed about the May 30 entry of Flory Milling Co., the youths denied participating in that burglary.

The arrests of Krumm, the 17-year-old and a 14-year-old Allentown boy led police to check some 50 robberies in Northampton and Lehigh Counties and Warren County in New Jersey.

Two Allentown policemen arrested the trio as they prepared to leave their "storehouse," a 1953 model sedan reportedly owned by Krumm.

In the automobile, which had been stopped at an Allentown intersection, police found money totaling $49, a wire brush, six screwdrivers, a hammer and 1,200 rounds of .22 caliber ammunition and other items of loot.

The arrests followed a series of robberies early Tuesday morning, including an Allentown market and the Frohes ballroom.

Only small articles were taken in both places, but State police were investigating the entries when the arrests were made.

Both juveniles are on probation from Northampton County Court. Krumm has no previous police record, authorities said.

Review Of Girl Scout Camp Development Presented At Meeting Of Kiwanis Club

Kiwanis' part in the establishment of Girl Scout Camp Lloyd Treble, located at Moser's Knob, and the outstanding work of the group in Monroe County were described by Mrs. Harold C. Edwards at the club meeting at Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Edwards, a former president of the Girl Scout Council, was presented by Alan W. Keiper, chairman of the club's Boys and Girls Work Committee.

The speaker traced the background of the Girl Scout movement back to 1920 when they had their Summer outing at Camp Deerbone, along the Delaware River, the next year in the Mount Pocono area.

The movement was revived and actually put on a solid basis in 1945 when the Leaders Association was formed.

Donation of some 16 or 17 acres of land on Moser's Knob by the late Lloyd Treble formed the basis on which the camp was established. Last week it closed its second year as a three-week day camp.

Kiwanis' $300 donation toward building material set the ball rolling, Mrs. Edwards said. The initial contribution by Kiwanis was followed by many other donations of material, cash and free labor. Result, today is a winter proof, cedar block structure, 30 by 35 feet which would cost between $3,500 and $4,000 to erect. It is all free of debt, the speaker said.

Mrs. Edwards told of the valuable donations of building materials by Line Material Co., of work by Edward Hoffman, Marshall's Creek in supervising building operations and that of Mrs. William J. Miller in rounding up workers as among the factors which made the present building possible. Camp Lloyd Treble was pictured as a "real community project."

Particular praise was given the Girl Scouts and others who had transformed what was "practically a wilderness" into the present attractive surroundings by Mrs. Edwards.

The day camp was operated three weeks this year, with 50 registered the first week, 68 the second and 50 the third, or a total of 177, Mrs. Edwards said, with hopes of a full month next year. Registration fee is $3. Transportation the past season cost $100. Mrs. Edwards said. Other groups will occupy the camp at different periods during the year she said.

Particular stress was also placed by the speaker on the purchase of the Girl Scout home on Sarah St., the debt having been reduced by $3,000 by the wonderful work of the Scouts, funds raised principally by the sale of cookies and also from sale of calendars.

The speaker also brought out the great number of experienced workers, who gave their services voluntarily required to operate the camp under the direction of Mrs. Camille Harvey, executive secretary of the Girl Scout Council.

Gretchen Wyckoff, a Bronnie, showed samples of handwork performed at the day camp and Suzanne Weber, an Intermediate Scout, told of experiences of the campers.

President Parke W. Kunkle in speaking on the camp operations paid high tribute to Mrs. J. Richard Altemose who saw to it there was a registered nurse at the camp all the time. Eight nurses gave their services voluntarily, he said.

Kunkle said of the 177 campers this Summer, 36 were repeats, 15 attended all three weeks and three

Greater Wheat Acreage Allowed Under New Law

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower has signed legislation permitting wheat growers to plant 62 million acres next year and still get high price supports.

This raises the allotment level for growers seven million acres above the 55 million acres provided in the old law.

Eisenhower signed the bill a few hours after both the Senate and House approved it in a rush to meet a midnight deadline. Speedy action was necessary because the allotment is the basis for the 1954 national marketing quotas, which Secretary of Agriculture Benson must announce by today.

Directors Map Details For West End Fair

Gilbert West End Fair directors met Tuesday night at the fairgrounds here.

It was a business session which started late because of difficulty with the lights.

After the lights were set in working order, directors, six women and two youngsters filed into the main exhibit hall to go over the reading of minutes, opening of bids, and to work out details of the opening of the fair next month.

Directors awarded the contract for printing the fair book to the Country Press, Saylorsburg; and voted to make a donation to the State Police rodeo program.

Next meeting will be held Aug. 11. It will be the last until opening of the fair. Another big chore to be done before fair time will be the making of the sauerkraut traditionally sold at the fair.

Directors of the fair remain the same as last year.

New officers are: Lloyd Frailey, Stroudsburg, RD3, vice-president, replacing Christie Trautt, Saylorsburg; Arlington D. Smith, Kunkle-town RD1, assistant secretary last year and now secretary of the fair; and LeRoy Hinton, Gilbert, assistant secretary.
